(b) the legal and other processes available to protect; and

(c) when the sea farers international identity documents were revised after the twin tower attack in September 2001 and why such revision did not take place in India?

THE MINISTER OF SHIPPING, ROAD TRANSPORT AND HIGHWAYS (SHRI T.R. BAALU): (a) No, Sir.

(b) In order to provide specific regulation to protect the seafarers, the Merchant Shipping Act, 1958, has been amended by Merchant Shipping (Amendment) Act, 2002. Following the amendment, Merchant Shipping (Recruitment and Placement of Seafarers) Rules, 2005 have been promulgated on 18.3.2005 to regulate and control recruitment and placement service. The Rules prescribe procedure for protection to the Seafarers from being stranded in foreign ports, protection from failure of Recruitment and Placement Service in meeting its obligations and provision for their repatriation.

(c) The seafarers identity document was revised by International Labour Organisation's (ILO) Seafarers' Identity Document Convention (Revised), 2003 (No 185) which was adopted in June, 2003 and came into force on 9th February, 2005. All Indian seafarers are issued Continuous Discharge Certificate-cum-Seafarers Identity Document in compliance with ILO Convention No. 108. In order to make the Continuous Discharge Certificate-cum-Seafarers Identity Document compliant with ILO Convention No. 185 the Government of India has ratified ILO Convention No. 108 on 17.1.2005 and thereby, under article 9 of International Labour Organization Convention No. 185, the existing Continuous Discharge-cum-Seafarers Identity Document which is in possession of Indian seafarers is considered as compliant with International Labour Organization Convention No. 185 under its "Transitional Provision".
